

LIFE THROUGH THE LENS

BEES CAN'T FLY! REALLY?

I have often heard the statement, “Bees should not be able to fly!”

This is a myth. Their wings just don’t work the way science expect wings to work. Scientifically, flying depends on a careful balance of technical things called, lift, drag, weight, and thrust. I don’t really understand these things; I doubt a bee does either. The bee just flies; does what he was made to do; collect honey and pollen and pollinate flowers. That is what the God who designed bees, designed them to do.

What about you? Ever wondered “Why am I here?” We all ask that question. Especially when facing someone’s words; actions; or attitude which shout, “You are a waste of space!” But, the same God who designed bees for a special purpose: also created you for a special purpose. Mostly to be His friend. Sounds strange I know, but it’s true.

When your life looks like a crash site, full of disasters, He says “I am here for you. I made you to be My friend. You might not be able to see me, but please stop, share your worries; your fears. Talk to me. Quieten your racing thoughts. Be still. Listen with your heart. Know I love and care about you. I want to help you be the person I meant you to be. Trust me. I didn’t make you to hover like a bee. I want you to “Soar like an eagle!”

Check God’s words in Isaiah chapter forty verse thirty-one.

Happy soaring. Kevin Schrapel