

“LIFE THROUGH THE LENS”

WHATEVER IS IT?

Yesterday it was a paddock with newly sown seed. I know; I saw the farmer going around on his tractor towing a seeder. Today it is a paddock with little bits of pink stuff here and there, too far away to see clearly. Whatever is it? I started to wonder; are they Galah feathers? Don't think so.

Then I noticed they were roughly in line. Ah! I had heard about globules of foam, dispensed at the end of a boom spray to indicate the area sprayed. But I had never seen it. Looking closer, I discovered not only was I correct, but I had the pleasure of seeing how the pink foam, actually sparkled in the sunlight.

I wonder how often we miss experiencing something special by not further investigating something which raises our curiosity? What might we miss by not, “looking closely”?

Have you “heard about” the love of God, the special friendship offered by Jesus? Was your reaction one of, “Sort of sounds interesting,” then rather than further investigating the idea, just moved on? Who knows what experience you may have missed?

Maybe you have accepted and believe the facts about Jesus and God, but have you stopped, moved in close, looking to experience the wonder, the joy, the sparkle that is there to enjoy? It is there; it is in Jesus' promise, “I came so that you can have life – yes, and have it full to overflowing.” (John 10:10)

Just like the pink with the glitter covers the dirt, God's love can cover and change your life. Just get close!

Cheers
