

"LIFE THROUGH THE LENS"

THE SUN WILL COME

Eight in the morning and the world was engulfed in fog. Never had I seen such a heavy fog around here. With only a dull glow attempting to break through the gloom, one could almost wonder if there would ever be light along our road again. Of course, I'm being over dramatic. Everyone knows the sun will drive away the fog, the day will most likely be bright and sunny, and all will be well with the world.

But what of those times when the fogs of life wrap their dark tentacles around us? When, for whatever reason, it is impossible to see to the "end of the road", the "end of the day", a "way through", a hazy, dark life situation.

What does one do when sickness, or a situation tearing at the fabric of family life, creates what appears to be a dark unavoidable void stretching forever into the future? How easily a car repair, new tyres, and the unexpected bill can cause despair, worry and gloom to come down into life worse than any fog.

When the future is seen as through a dark swirling mist without any form of joy or colour, The loving God of the Bible wants us to know two things are uppermost in his mind.

One: He wishes you and everyone to live lives filled with love, joy and contentment.

Two: He wants you to enjoy a relationship with him of love, trust and a belief that he wants only what is best for you.

And so he tells us, "Come to me, all you who are weary and burdened, and I will give you rest." (Matthew 11:28). "He guides the humble in what is right and teaches them his way." (Psalm 25:9)

He wants his love and power to burn away the fog patches in your life. Will you talk to him about them and trust him to keep his word? It may not always be how you expected, but with Jesus, a promise to care is never broken.
